CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

The Canadian Bulletin of Medical History is planning a special issue on the history of cancer. Since the early twentieth century, cancer has been a major cause of mortality and morbidity in developed countries such as Canada, and a focus for public health campaigns which have waged a 'war' on the disease.

The intent of this issue is to explore the many dimensions of the public, professional, and societal responses to this 'dread disease'. While the Bulletin's primary focus is Canadian history, international submissions also are welcome.

Abstracts must be sent by October 1st, 2001. Completed manuscripts are expected by April 1st, 2002. In addition to scholarly articles, research notes, methodological discussions, review essays and descriptions of archival or museological holdings will be considered. The Bulletin publishes both English and French submissions.

For further information please contact Dr. Cheryl Krasnick Warsh, Editor-in-Chief, CBMH, Department of History, Malaspina University - College, 900 Fifth Street, Nanaimo, B.C.
